The adjustments are explained as below:

2. Note on retrospective adjustments of the previous comparison data due to the first implementation of the new financial instrument guidelines, and the new lease criteria.

√ Applicable □ Not applicable

The new financial instrument standard has changed the classification and measurement of financial assets, and has identified three major measurement categories: amortized cost; measured at fair value and its changes are included in other comprehensive income; measured at fair value through current profit and loss. Enterprises need to consider the business model of their own, as well as the contractual cash flow characteristics of financial assets to carry out the above classification. The equity instrument investment is measured at fair value through current profit or loss, but at the time of initial recognition, the non-tradable equity instrument investment can be irrevocably designated as financial asset measured at fair value and whose changes are included in other comprehensive income.

According to the requirements of the new financial instrument standard, financial assets impairment measurement is changed from the “loss incurred model” to the “expected credit loss model”, which is applicable to financial assets measured at amortized cost, financial assets measured at fair value and whose changes are included in other comprehensive income, as well as loan commitments and financial guarantee contracts.

The Company endorses or discounts some bank acceptance bills in daily fund management. The business model for managing the above-mentioned notes receivable is aimed at both collecting contractual cash flow and for sales. Therefore, the notes receivable are reclassified as financial assets measured at fair value and whose changes are included in other comprehensive income by the Group and are presented under other current assets since January 1st 2019.
